Minnesota.

Three other quarterbacks made it back but lost, with Jim Kelly going 0-4 in Super Bowls, Fran Tarkenton 0-3 and Craig Morton 0-2.

SEAHAWKS DOMINANT DEFENSE

The Seahawks once again used a dominant defense to win a Super Bowl, shutting down Maye and the Patriots in similar fashion to what they did 12 years ago against Peyton Manning and Denver.

Now the question is, where does Seattle stand when compared to the Legion of Boom defense and other top units that went on memorable Super Bowl runs?

Some advanced metrics like the efficiency stat DVOA, which takes into account how a defense rates compared to the rest of the league based on situation and quality of opponent, have this year's Seahawks defense ranked with the past greats.

Seattle's defense ranks fourth best among all Super Bowl-winning defenses since 1978 in DVOA counting the regular season and playoffs, coming in behind the 2002 Tampa Bay Buccaneers, the 1985 Chicago Bears and the 2000 Baltimore Ravens, and ahead of Seattle's 2013 team.

The Seahawks forced eight punts and a fumble on the first nine drives of the game for New England before finally allowing a score with 12:27 to play. That's the fourth-longest scoreless stretch to start a Super Bowl and longest since Minnesota didn't score until there was 10:33 left against Pittsburgh in Super Bowl 9.

The Seahawks allowed 78 yards in the first three quarters for the fewest through three quarters since the Patriots had just 58 in Super Bowl 20 against the Chicago Bears defense that is viewed by many as the best ever.

In all, Seattle became the fourth team in Super Bowl history to force at least eight punts and three turnovers, with the 2000 Ravens defense the last to do that against the New York Giants.

It was all part of a dominant season, with the Seahawks tying for the second-best point differential in the regular season and playoffs of any Super Bowl champion since the 2000 season. Seattle's 12.3 points-per-game advantage was just a tick behind the 2013 version at plus 12.4.

The Seahawks lost just three games by a combined nine points, becoming the first Super Bowl champion to be outscored by single digits in its losses since Washington lost two games by a total of five points in

DARNOLD PROTECTS THE BALL

Protecting the ball was a major problem for Sam Darnold for much of the regular season, when he led the NFL with 20 turnovers.

But starting with a clean performance in a Week 18 win over San Francisco to clinch the division and No. 1 seed in the NFC playoffs, Darnold didn't turn the ball over once in his final four games. He became the first QB to win a Super Bowl in a season that he led the NFL in turnovers since Eli Manning had 27 for the New York Giants in 2007.

Darnold became the first quarterback to win the Super Bowl without a postseason turnover since Drew Brees did it in the 2009 season for the New Orleans Saints.

Last year's game was decided in the first half as Philadelphia built a 24-0 lead en route to a 40-22 victory.

BAD BUNNY VS. KID ROCK

The Turning Point USA halftime show featuring Kid Rock peaked at 5 million at one point on YouTube.

Nielsen did not measure any of the YouTube live stream viewership. Of the linear networks that carried it, the only one Nielsen measures is broadcast network Charge! Full Nielsen ratings for the prior week will be released on Wednesday.

According to YouTube figures though, there have been 21,208,583 views of the alternate halftime show through Tuesday night, according to the conservative organization's page. Bad Bunny's show has already had 61,311,972 views.

HALFTIME SHOW ON SOCIAL MEDIA

Total social media consumption of Bad Bunny's halftime show set a record of 4 billion views after the first 24 hours, according to the NFL and Ripple Analytics. That is a 137% increase over last year.

The social media figures include fans, owned platforms, broadcast partners and influencers.

The NFL said over 55% of all social views came from international markets.

Full global viewership for the halftime show is expected to be available early next week.

SPANISH AUDIENCE RECORD

Telemundo averaged 3.3 million viewers, making it the most-watched Super Bowl Spanish-language broadcast in the United States. The Super Bowl has been televised in Spanish in the U.S. since 2014.

The audience peaked during the halftime show, averaging 4.8 million viewers — also making it the most-watched Super Bowl halftime in Spanish-language history.
